MGMT 004:
Work, Power, and Inequality

Course Details

Instructor:	Sara Jane McCaffrey	Summer 1:	May 24 –June 30, 2021
Meeting Days:	Tuesdays and Thursdays	Office Hours:	TBD (online)
Meeting Times:	7pm – 8:50pm (EDT)

Course Description & Objectives

From the immigrant shirtwaist sewers' strike of 1909 to the 2021 union declaration by engineers Google, MGMT 004 examines imbalances of power in the workplace and responses to perceived abuses of employer power. We investigate, via an exploration of government regulations and an examination of movements like #MeToo, how government and firm-level human capital policies shape workforce inequalities of race and gender. Throughout the course, we compare the United States with other countries to assess how national institutions influence both productivity and profitability (for firms) and fairness and stability (for workers).

Course Overview

This class emphasizes discussion, and students are required to participate synchronously during scheduled class meetings.

Course Content & Schedule

A note on readings: Students must complete the assigned readings (and view videos/ listen to podcasts) before class on the day shown in the schedule. Readings can be accessed via the “Assignments” section on Canvas, where you will find links to Harvard Business School cases for purchase and links to articles, library URLs (for journal articles), and PDFs. On Canvas, you will also find a list of study questions for each session to help guide your preparation for class. In several cases, I ask you to read only a few of the pages in an assigned article or chapter; these cases are clearly noted on Canvas and below.

Assessments & Grading

Student assessments are grouped in the following categories:

	% of total
1. Individual paper (April 10)	25
2. Class preparation and participation, including daily Canvas 'quizzes' (top 9 of 12 grades)	40
3. Group Project Presentation (April 28)	10
4. Group Project Paper (May 1)	25

In the interest of fairness, all students will be given the same assessment opportunities. There will be no opportunities to earn credit beyond of what is outlined in this syllabus.

Group Project: Presentation or Video (10%) and Paper (25%)

For detailed information on the expected content and format of the group projects, as well as a timetable for deliverables and a grading rubric, please see the prompt posted on Canvas.

- Teams must consist of exactly four students.

Please note: This is a preliminary syllabus and is subject to change. It provides useful introductory detail and additional course insight as you prepare for the application process.

- Groups will receive one grade for the project. If groups are experiencing problems working together, members should inform me well in advance of any due dates. In cases of egregious free rider problems, I will consider splitting a group and requiring one or more individuals to do a project to a solo project. For this to be considered, I must be notified at least nine calendar days before the final deadline.

Project timetable and deliverables:

Project team composition must be input on Canvas (click on “People” then the tab for “Project Groups”). You may input your own groups, but note that groups MUST contain exactly members. Members of incomplete groups may be split up and reassigned. Please email me your topic. No two groups will be allowed to cover the same topic. Students who do not self-sort into groups will be assigned.

Project teams submit a 300-500 word proposal that names the organization you plan to study, outlines the main focus of your analysis (your research question), and details how you plan to gather data.

Project presentations: Upload your files to Canvas at least two hours before class, and have a backup ready to share via Zoom.

Students must submit the final group project reports (pdf form) by 11 PM EST.

Penalties for late group papers:

- For each additional day (or fraction thereof submitted past the deadline, three points (of 100) will be deducted from the group paper grade.

Individual Writing Assignment (25%)

For detailed information on expected content and format for the individual writing assignment, please see the prompts posted on Canvas under “Assignments”.

Late paper policy: students who submit their papers late will be docked one point for the first day (or fraction thereof), one more point for the second day, and two additional points each additional day. This late policy will be STRICTLY ENFORCED. Outside of the most exigent circumstances, last minute requests for extensions will not be granted.

Class Preparation, Attendance, Homework, and in Class Participation (40%)

A. Showing Up

- This class emphasizes synchronous discussion. To ensure you get credit for attending class, please log into the meeting on time and turn on your video.

Please note: This is a preliminary syllabus and is subject to change. It provides useful introductory detail and additional course insight as you prepare for the application process.

- Students will receive a preparation and participation grades for all class meetings (other than the first and the final class). Should students be unable to attend synchronously for any reason, including last-minute technology failures, they will earn no credit for preparation and participation for that class. The lowest THREE participation grades will be dropped (of twelve). Therefore, students can miss a maximum of three classes without penalty.
- Attendance at fewer than half the sessions may result in course failure regardless of performance on other class assessments.

B. "Quizzes" and Homework

- At the beginning of each session, students will be asked to answer a couple of short questions based on the readings assigned for the day AND on the readings and discussion from the previous class. Via the "Quiz" feature on Canvas, students will be given 10-15 minutes to answer the questions. Please log in on time so that you have the full opportunity to do so.
- Homework
 - "About Me" slide: Please complete and upload by the first day of class, or (if you add the class late) when you register. A template is available on Canvas.
 - Other homework may be assigned in advance of certain class days. Failure to complete assigned homework could result in lost points in this assessment category.

C. Speaking in Class

- Because discussion is a substantial part of this course, student participation is essential, both for your own learning and for that of the other students. Students are expected to come to class having read and thought about the assigned material. Cold calls are fair game.
- Students must contribute memorably and effectively to earn credit in this category. Absences will not factor into the tabulation of scores for this category (i.e., the speaking score will be a sum of points accumulated, not an average based on the number of times a student attends class).
- The best comments in class advance our discussion, often by responding (politely) to other students' arguments, drawing support from course readings, outside sources, and real-world experience, or making connections between MGMT 104 and other courses.
- High-quality participation also involves knowing when to speak and when to listen or allow others to speak. Vague, tangential, or repetitive comments, along with remarks that are disrespectful of other students, will result in lost credit.

D. Calculation of Preparation and Participation Grades

- Written responses should demonstrate that students have mastered the content from the previous session, and read the day's assignments carefully. In addition, students earn credit for speaking memorably and effectively in class-wide discussions.
- After each class session, I will record preparation and participation grades, based on the 'quizzes' at the beginning of class and student contributions during the synchronous discussion.
- If we work on a small group activity that takes a substantial part of the class and requires students to upload their work, points may be awarded for that participation.
